Professional Social Workers in India (NAPSWI).

Introduction

The Department of Social Work, Visva-Bharati, (a Central University and an Institute of National Importance), School of Social Work, IGNOU and the NAPSWI is organizing a national seminar on issues of Community development. Apart from the giving an opportunity to scholars and practioners to discuss and to debate on these important issues of community development in India and other countries, the seminar is also a part of the worldwide celebrations of the 150th Birth anniversary of Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore. The Department of Social Work, Visva-Bharati which evolved out of the Tagore's holistic vision for rural reconstruction is also celebrating its 50th anniversary (Golden Jubilee) of its establishment. (1963-2012).

About Rabindranath Tagore and Visva-Bharati

Rabindranath Tagore (May 1861 –7 August 1941), a Noble Laureate, was a multifaceted personality who excelled in number of diverse roles as- poet, novelist, composer, public speaker, essayist, painter, freedom fighter, educationist and philosopher. Seventy years after his death, it is not uncommon for both intellectuals and ordinary people to refer to his works to get insights into understanding present day problems. Even his critics' acknowledge that his ideas have contributed to better understanding of social and political realities. The debate between Mahatma Gandhi and Tagore on the role of nationalism in modern society is a relevant example.

Visva-Bharati, in the words of Tagore, is his most precious creation. Tagore was awarded the Noble Prize in 1913. He made numerous visits to several countries all over the world. His visits helped him know better other countries, their cultures and peoples. He was convinced that the best means to solve the political, social, economic and spiritual problems of the modern world is by facilitating greater understanding between different communities and peoples. The motto of Visva-Bharati therefore, is taken from the Vedic text and says "Yatra visvam bhavtyekanidam" (where the world makes a home in a single nest). Visva-Bharati was declared to be a Central University and "An Institution of National Importance" by an Act of Parliament in May 1951.

About the seminar

Indira Gandhi national Open University (IGNOU) and the National Association of Professional Social Workers (NAPSWI) of India have been annually organizing a National seminar on HIV/AIDS in collaboration with different institutions in several cities of India since 2004. This is the ninth annual national seminar and the collaborator for this seminar is the Department of Social Work, Visva-Bharati.

Indira Gandhi National Open University (IGNOU) was established by an Act of Parliament in 1985. Today it serves the educational aspirations of about four million students in India and abroad through 21 schools of studies, 12 chairs, and an elaborate network of 60 regional centres, over 45,000 academic counsellors, about 3500 study centres, and 52 overseas centres. IGNOU made history by establishing the first school of social work in ODL system in 2007 which is perhaps the largest school of social work with student strength of over 30,000.

The themes for the seminar

The experience of Indian community development initiatives is about a century old. The non-governmental initiatives started in the colonial period and the government efforts in community development started in 1952. Many of these initiatives were influenced and inspired by Gandhi's and Tagore's philosophy. The seminar will attempt to discuss and learn from all major experiences of community development programmes.

It is now universally recognized that health and development are directly related. The problem of HIV/AIDS is therefore not simply a health issue but also a development and human rights issue. Developed countries have largely been able to address the problems of HIV/ AIDS including treatment and support. Lesser developed countries have lesser resources to allocate to health care and even lesser for HIV/AIDS. They suffer huge economic and social loss due to the disease and consequently it impedes their developmental progress. Similarly, at the national level, the poorer communities are facing the brunt of the disease- migration as a result of the collapse of traditional livelihoods, loss of community support and lack of awareness are the main factors. The vulnerable sections of the society like women and children are directly or indirectly, the worst sufferers. If development is described by Amartya Sen as increasing choices and capabilities for enjoying a better life then the prevention and management of social and economic problems including HIV/ AIDS should be a key element in any development strategy. Keeping this in mind we have identified the following major issues to be addressed in the seminar.

- Gandhi's philosophy on rural upliftment
- Tagore's philosophy on rural reconstruction
- Community development and rural livelihoods
- Govt. intervention in community development
- Social work intervention and community development
- Community development and welfare of the physically challenged
- Programme formulation and programme implementation
- Community Development and social work- Linkages and relationship
- HIV/AIDS, High Risk population and development
- HIV/ AIDS, stigma and discrimination
- AIDS and Counselling skills
- NGOS and HIV/AIDS
